BALANCE

Today's scriptures emphasize the fundamental link between love of God and love of our neighbors, especially those who are most in need. Love of God should compel us to love the people whom God cherishes. Conversely, work for justice and charity for those in need should be rooted in our love of God.

That connection and balance, however, isn't always easy to maintain in our lives. Even in religious orders we find that some Christians are more oriented toward contemplation and prayer, while others are more active in reaching out to those who are oppressed. Today Jesus reminds us of the necessity for both in the life of faith.

TREASURES FROM OUR TRADITION

This week we have in All Souls' Day a commemoration that is linked to the Halloween customs. The big-spending sugar shock holiday is a long way removed from Thursday's grateful remembrance of the souls who are hidden from our sight, but alive to Christ. Old pagan superstitions might find us holding our breath when going by the graveyard, whereas others might actually go to the cemetery to tend the family graves, to share good food, and remember dear ones. Nowhere does a culture embrace this day as fully as in Mexico. The "Day of the Dead" is a national holiday that unfolds over three full days.

For three thousand years, the indigenous people of Mexico have been mocking death in an annual festival, and the invading Spaniards were shocked at the spectacle. To the Aztecs, life was a dream, and death was the entry into full life. Skulls were thus a symbol of joy and release from life's sorrows. The missionaries found all this a bit creepy, but they moved the three-day feast from August to synchronize it with the Christian calendar. So today, graves are decorated, altars are built in the home to honor the family dead, children feast on candy skulls, and people dress up in elaborate skeleton outfits. The devout spend hours in the cemetery, and there is a lively sense of the communion of saints, the living and the dead.

INCLUSIVE LOVE

Love of our neighbor is included in the love of God.

Scripture Reflection

Although Israelites had always valued concise proverbs, thinkers of Jesus' day also developed Greek-style "wisdom summaries" of Israelite teaching. One famous story relates that a pagan man challenged the esteemed Rabbi Hillel to teach the entire Torah while he stood on one foot. As the man lifted his foot, Rabbi Hillel said, "That which is hateful to you do not do to your fellow. That is the whole of the Torah. The rest is commentary: Go and learn."

"Which commandment in the law is the greatest?" Jesus turns to Scripture, drawing the first part of his response from Deuteronomy 6:5 and the second from Leviticus 19:18. These were probably texts that had inspired him throughout his ministry, but his response was also shrewd. By using God's own words, Jesus offered his opponents little to refute and gave his sympathetic listeners a religious outlook both vigorous and elegant.

The covenantal language of Deuteronomy and Leviticus assumes freedom. When the books of the covenant speak of love, they speak of something that emerges from feelings of wonder. The nation was strongest when Israelites bore each other's burdens and held each other in high esteem. They expressed their gratitude for the nation's survival in an awe-inspired love for neighbor as well as God.

Jesus turns this love toward the whole human race. He draws on Deuteronomy's protection of foreigners for the seeds of this teaching, but his commandment makes it universal. Every human life is a miracle. Every display of love that we receive should transfix us with awe and inspire a response of the deepest generosity. Christ dreams of a church so loving that it holds the world spellbound in wonder and reveals a God whose mighty deeds are worthy of profoundest devotion. Those who live out Jesus' simple words bring this dream to fulfillment.

- How do you live Jesus' simple words in your life love God and love your neighbor?

Mt. 22:34-40

In today's gospel the Pharisees were asking about a commandment (something we have to do)! And Jesus was talking about love (what we want to do with our whole heart, mind and soul"). In families we daily lay down our lives for one another, not because of a law but out of love.

The Legend of St. Hubertus

Legend has it Hubertus, born in the seventh century, seeks comfort and distraction on lonely hunts after the death of his beloved wife Princess Floribana in childbirth.

One Christmas Eve, he encounters on one of these hunts the wondrous image of a splendid red albino stag carrying a shining cross between its antlers. Through this vision, Hubert is moved to transform his life. He lays down his high ranks of office and distributes his wealth among the poor and the church.

St. Hubertus has been the patron saint of hunters and animal protectionists (Tierschutzverein) in northern Europe who attempt to honor him by sharing their feasts with townspeople, holding charity fundraising festivals and being responsible for the care of animals on their lands, both domestic and wild.

When a buck was hunted, hunters through the ages have placed a pallium, or a small branch of evergreen, or if none is available, oak, in the mouth of the fallen game. This is done as an offering of the Last Bite, signifying a final salute to the animal and symbolically giving back to GOD " the soul which I receive from Him." If food was scarce in the winter, he would go out to the forest to provide it for the animals.

He valued his loyal hunting dogs though often they went to the forest not to hunt, but to be a part its wonder. Through honoring the forest's creatures, he honored the creator. He felt a responsibility to all animals and could not let an animal suffer needlessly.
